Housewarming Party

Nothing tops the feeling of moving into a new home—except, that is, showing it off to your friends and family. Throwing a housewarming party is a time-honored way to help you settle into the habit of entertaining in your new surroundings. In your guests' minds, it establishes your home as a venue for future get-togethers. However, inviting friends over when you are only just getting acclimated can prove stressful if you ask too much of yourself or your loved ones.
